Reading and Research Guide for HOOT by Carl Hiassen

As you read, list any animals that are found in the book on the back of this sheet.

The main character of the novel, Roy Eberhardt, has recently moved from Montana to Florida. Not only are these 2 states across the country from one another, but they have completely different climates. Research the climates of each state and list the main characteristics below. You should find the average temperature, average rainfall, climate type, and a general description of the conditions for each state.

Montana

Florida

This book examines the ecological impacts of urban expansion on the environment. According to the Endangered Species Act of 1973, what are the classifications that organisms can fall under. List them and define them.

Research the habitat and ecology of the burrowing owl and the grizzly bear since these are two species that interest Roy immensely. Describe conservation efforts toward each of these species.
